Treasure Coast Accommodations Available for Those Impacted by Hurricane Irma

ST. LUCIE COUNTY – The Treasure Coast tourism offices are working together to ensure area residents and others have a comfortable place to stay. As a result of Hurricane Irma’s damage and power outages to the Treasure Coast and South Florida, the St. Lucie County, Martin County and Indian River County tourism offices have recognized that many east coast Florida residents are still without power or are unable to inhabit their home due to damage. Additionally, demand for accommodations has increased with the influx of utility workers in the area assisting with repair operations.

Nearly all hotels reported just minor damage and cleanup efforts. Of the hotels contacted, there were no reports of major structural damage from Hurricane Irma. And most importantly, a majority of the properties are already back up and running or will be within the next few days. The three tourism agencies have compiled a list below of area accommodations that as of, Thursday, Sept. 14, are open, have power and room availability. It is recommended to call the property directly to book reservations, inquire about cancellation policies, pet-friendly policies, etc.
